Boise, Ida., Sept. 9 (INS)—Senator William E. Borah says he is ready to endorse the candidacy of Franklin D. Roosevelt if the Democratic standard-bearer proposes an adequate program of specific measures for the relief of agriculture. In an exclusive interview, Borah declined to comment, but declared the presidential race lay west of the Mississippi, to be won or lost by the candidates themselves in speeches yet to be made.

Borah, who drove the Hoover band wagon in 1928, declined to say whether he would support or bolt the President this year. His friends said Franklin D. Roosevelt could win his public endorsement by proposing a specific program for the permanent economic relief of agriculture.

Asked directly about the outcome of the pending election, Borah declared it would be won or lost in the West—and by the pronouncements of the presidential candidates, their party clubs and party platforms meant nothing to the voter this year.

"This race for the presidency is any man's fight," he declared. "The people are looking for a constructive program and, take my word for it, when they find that program, they are going to vote for the man proposing it."

Borah said prohibition would have some effect in the West, with President Hoover as the beneficiary because the Democratic platform was regarded by drys as "infinitely

MEDFORD TRUST ACCOUNTS ARE REVIEWED

Savings in Closed Bank for Four Years Told by Auditor on Stand

Accounts of the closed Medford Trust Co. savings department for a period of more than four years were reviewed in Suffolk court today in the $100,000 suit of Bank Commissioner Arthur Guy against Edwin T. McKnight, president, Mrs. McKnight and 21 directors.

John Deery, former president of the Salem Trust Co., who testified yesterday that he introduced with Gov. By against the closing of the bank, was not recalled.

George H. MacBeth, certified public accountant, testified through the morning session about his audit from May, 1927, until the bank closed last September.

Charles W. Blood, sitting as master, was forced to rule on scores of objections by defense counsel during the testimony.

U. S. FIGHTS FOR DRUG TREATY

Washington, Sept. 9 (AP)—The State Department has intervened in an effort to save the league court anti-narcotic treaty, it was learned today.

Although the responsibility rests with the league, the department has sent notes to world powers urging them to speed ratification.

HITLER FORCES ARE WARNED BY HINDENBURG

Nazis Must Co-operate With Von Papen or Reichstag Will Be Dissolved

Berlin, Sept. 9 (AP)—President Von Hindenburg talked for ten minutes today with Hermann Goering, president of the Reichstag, and the three vice-presidents, indicating unmistakably that he has no intention of divorcing himself from Chancellor Von Papen's cabinet.

The reception was continued on the most friendly terms, but the President indicated that he is unwilling to yield one inch in his determination to free the country from domination by political parties.

He challenged the National Socialists and the Centre, who have been trying to form a coalition under Adolf Hitler to co-operate with the cabinet or submit to dissolution of the Reichstag.

He is expected to reject the various party proposals to exhaust all the constitutional possibilities for co-operation between the government and the parliament, but political observers do not expect any concrete result from these meetings. Rather they count on dissolution.

New York, Sept. 9—Mrs. Nanette Bayne Sues, formerly known as the Shakespearean stage as Nan Byron, has renewed her battle with her wealthy ex-husband, Jasper Bayne, in the courts.

In her latest action, filed in Supreme Court, Mrs. Bayne demands $750,000 damages from her divorced husband, who she claims, was inspired when she asked the court three years ago to increase the $125,000 alimony and $200 for the support of her daughter, Nanette, 10, which was awarded her at the time of her divorce in 1928.

President De Valera is expected to preside at meetings of the league council and as the opening session of the league assembly.

For some time there has been considerable doubt whether the President would go to Geneva.

New York Democrats Should Nominate Lehman to Defeat Power Trust

politicians to elect more Wall Street public officials to help Wall Street rob you some more.

That is the real "vicious circle" which we hear so much about.

AND make no mistake, it is vicious enough to satisfy the most uncompromising reactionary so destructive is it of all American ideals of popular government and public welfare.

A leading candidate for the nomination of the Republican party for governor of New York is former Governor Nathan L. Miller.

He is a tried and true reactionary of proven Wall Street usefulness.

He was perhaps the most unpopular governor that New York has ever had.

He is a director in Mr. Morgan's Steel Trust and a supporter of Mr. Morgan's Power Trust, and he has a very fair chance of being nominated by Mr. Morgan's cut-and-dried convention.

Daniel F. Kenefick, another leading candidate, is a regular representative of the power companies.

F. Trubee Davison is directly connected with the Morgan group, and would be a candidate entirely satisfactory to the Power Trust.

THE country knows what the Power Trust is. They know that it broke the law through illegal combinations.

They know that it debauched law-makers, that it corrupted the corruptible part of the press, and bought newspapers it could not influence.

They know that it hired college professors, and had its literature introduced into the schools.

They know that it robbed the public with high rates and then swindled the public with worthless securities.

They know that it is the most generally demoralizing to popular government and American institutions of those so-called public service corporations which should serve the public, but in reality rob the public.

They know that Governor Roosevelt first became popular because of his courage in resisting the evil influences of the Power Trust.

They know that the Power Trust organized the opposition to Governor Roosevelt as a presidential candidate in Chicago; that it directed the effort to defeat him; invaded the Roosevelt delegations with all sorts of seductive propositions to desert him; overwhelmed the convention with telegrams in order to prevent his nomination; and since his nomination has been his most powerful and active enemy.

Republican campaign as well.

They are ballooning the market in New York in the hope of helping Mr. Hoover win the office and inflated prosperity.

They are arraying all their forces against their money against the Democratic national convention.

The Democratic party in New York is in a crucial position at this critical time.

Its nominees are inferior to such a governor as Herbert H. Lehman, a man in the highest sense of the word a politician and in the politics of the nation.

Furthermore, the character of this nominee will mean much to the general welfare of the public through genuine democratic government for "the greatest good of the greatest number."

The New York Democracy should nominate a candidate for governor whose record and character will place him in sharp contrast to any one of the horde of Power Trust candidates who are contending for the Republican nomination.

THE Democratic party of New York should nominate a candidate for governor who would be in complete sympathy with the principles and policies of the Democratic candidate for President.

The Democratic party of New York should nominate for governor a candidate whose public record of performance is in harmony with the records of Governor Roosevelt and Governor Smith, his predecessors in the gubernatorial office.

Lieutenant-Governor Lehman is the natural and proper nominee of the Democratic party for governor of the State of New York because of his high personal standing, because of his sound executive ability, because of his fine record in the office of lieutenant-governor, and because he is firmly committed to the anti-Power Trust policies which distinguished the administrations of previous Democratic governors.

The Hearst papers have long been supporters of Herbert H. Lehman for important positions in public life; and the Hearst papers today ardently support Lieutenant-Governor Lehman as the man best fitted by character and experience to carry on the policies of his great predecessors and to fortify the campaign for Democratic principles not only in New York State, but throughout the nation.

GURLEY SPEAKS IN MONTANA

Butte, Mont., Sept. 9—Mayor James M. Gurley of Boston, advocate of the Democratic campaign who will stump the northwest, today planned further attacks on the Republican national administration. He was scheduled to speak in Anaconda, and then leave for Portland, Ore. where he will address the Legion national convention.

Mayor Gurley, predicting the election of Gov. Roosevelt, declared the governor sponsors an economic program that will restore not only hope but opportunity for the workers of America.

"I look forward, under Franklin D. Roosevelt's administration," he said, "to the adoption of the two-day week day, for the absorption in industry of the citizenship of America who have been forced into machinery and the consequent of the speeding-up process and the development of the world through the inventive genius of the American people."

CRIMINAL BOARD OF DEATH PARALLEL MARKS DEATHS OF JEAN AND LIBBY

CHARGES GREAT WASTING OF AID FUNDS

South End Man Charges Help
Recipients Are Paying to Have Cards Stamped

Another bombshell was exploded in the investigation of welfare waste and fraud today when a high police official recommended the removal by Mayor Curley of the entire Boston public welfare board.

Following this came a charge by a South End man of "graft" in welfare matters.

This man told Deputy Supt. Thomas F. Goode that men receiving aid and supposed to work on relief jobs were paying 25 and 50 cents to have their weekly work cards given the official O. K. at the "Secret" at five stations.

He admitted that he had been removed from the welfare list because a "potter" saw him in a drink with two other recipients of city aid.

The high police official, who urged discharge of the whole welfare board, also recommended the retaining of all needy families after a new board has been appointed.

He stated that it was uncertain as yet whether the police would prosecute persons receiving aid unworthily, or leave that to the welfare department, and he added:

"Things are in such a mixed-up mess that in many cases where money has been paid out improperly, I don't know whether we should prosecute the recipients, the visitor or the overseer."

Money has been paid in many cases without applications for aid having been filled out at least in applications can be found in the welfare department files he declined to bring.

REPORT ON 500 BLOCKED

Meanwhile the complete and authentic report on the first 500 cases, which Police Commissioner Hollman planned to send to the mayor's office tonight, was still only a phantom.

Commissioner Hollman said: "It will not be able to make report to Acting Mayor Gallagher tonight. Too much work must still be done on it."

Numerous letters, containing "tips" on welfare takers, which police intend to investigate in all cases, are still awaiting investigation, but one letter received today will be quickly looked into.

HINT OF DEATH FOR NINE

It was written by an unemployed man, with a wife and seven children, and contained a hint of suicide—perhaps something worse.

The high police official, who declined to let his name be used, though there is no doubt that he speaks authoritatively, said, in part: "I believe the visitor should remove the entire public welfare board and appoint another—make a fresh start."

"I believe the mayor should announce that all persons now receiving aid would not get any more aid after a certain date, say October 15 or November 1, and that everybody must reapply under the new board."

"If this were done, a great many unworthy recipients would be eliminated, and a large amount of money saved for the taxpayers."

The "suicide" letter read, in part: "My wife and I are ready to end it all if something is not done. I feel pretty bad to think that when I was working, I gave to charity. In the name of God, have I got to turn round in order to get something to eat and a place to sleep?"

"My family is destitute and I am in a desperate frame of mind. We are going to have our furniture taken away from us. Our rent is behind two months and when our furniture is taken away, there will be seven of us in the street."

"We are going to have our gas and electric light shut off and we have nothing left to do but starve or desert our family. I cannot stand this and am at the glimmer to wonder if the welfare board is really helping needy cases. I am desperate and feel I don't get a break now that it might as well be dead."

The writer said the welfare board had granted him $5 grocery order for the seven people. He admitted that one son was working for $16 a week and paying $3 at the welfare board. The welfare board told him this son should turn in $10 weekly to the household.

LILY PONS AND HUSBAND PART

Rio De Janeiro, Brazil, Sept. 9 (AP)—Lily Pons, Metropolitan opera star, today said she was estranged from her husband, August Meier, retired Dutch lawyer and publisher of Paris, but that divorce plans were being held in abeyance owing to her engagements in the United States.

"I consider reasons for our estrangement as private and do not care to discuss them," said Miss Pons.

The divorce has been vacationing here and will sail for the United States on the steamship American Legion on Sept. 15. She is engaged to make a concert tour in the United States as well as to appear in the opera in New York.

Her husband accompanied her when she came here a year ago. But he returned to Paris.

J. S. DONOVAN'S
HEIRESS TO WED

Miss Grace Adelaide Donovan, adopted daughter of the late Joseph S. (Mackay-millions) Donovan and heiress to a large part of the fortune he acquired in the Boston auto industry, will become the bride on Monday of Dr. Charles Edward Donovan, of Peabody.

The announcement of their engagement last winter, Miss Donovan's foster mother passed away, and although she made a will it was declared invalid and two-thirds of Donovan's $1,000,000 estate reverted to the girl in accordance with his own wishes, executed just before he died six years ago.

Miss Donovan's home is at 275 Commonwealth ave., Chestnut Hill, Dr. Donovan is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Edward Donovan of Peabody and practices in Salem and Boston.

The wedding will be in St. Mary's Chapel, Boston College.

Miss Donovan's foster father was one of the most romantic figures in the Boston auto industry. As a boy of 15 he vowed to make a million and then retire to enjoy it. He founded the Donovan Motor Car Co. here, made the million, and at the age of 45 retired. A year later he died.

His widow married Arthur H. O'Neill in 1931.

BOY SLASHED TO DEATH IN CRIB

New York, Sept. 9 (AP)—A six-year-old boy, his wrists slashed, was found dead in his crib this morning.

The boy, William Garen Tubbs, of Flushing, had been murdered in a sleep, police have announced on a slain for William Henry Joseph Tubbs, 32, the father.

Tubbs, who lived with his wife and the child, left this morning, before the child's death had been discovered by the mother. He was slain by a neighbor who, when police came to her home, asked her to lend him a dollar, and then hurried out something about earning for the boy for a short time.

PICKUP SEEN BY
N. E. COUNCIL

From reports of trade associations, boards of trade and other sources, the New England Council today reported a definite pickup in New England industries.

Reopenings of textile mills, shoe factories, poultry mills and steel-making establishments led the optimistic list.

Many others that have been operating on part time have resumed full time trade and some have added night crews for operations of their industries 24 hours.

One of the outstanding among reopenings was that the Dixie Mills in Fall River. They had been shut down for more than six months.

Not only Massachusetts, but the other New England states as well, are showing in the uptrend the report said.

BOY DIES AFTER SAVING 2 GIRLS

New Orleans, Sept. 9 (AP)—Billy Tyler, 15-year-old high school boy, saved two girls' lives at the expense of his own and never realized he had played the hero's part.

He died in a hospital here today of burns suffered yesterday in a garage fire. He was pouring gasoline into a container as two girls, Camille Sanborn and Clara Belle Truett, both 15, stood by.

An automobile backfired, ignited the gasoline and the three were showered with flaming fluid. Billy grabbed the burning can and started to go to the street. The flames seared him from head to foot. The girls escaped without serious burns.

BLONDE JEAN—AND—BRUNETTE LIBBY

Strikingly different at first glance, yet curiously alike in closer examination, are these two famed beauties, leading figures in real life tragedies stranger than any they ever portrayed in make-believe. First you have widowed Jean Harlow—whose husband Paul Bern took his life. Then Libby Holman, the torch singer of Broadway fame—now under bail—in connection with death of her husband, Smith Reynolds. Note, as Mary Dougherty brings out in her story, the petulant, roused lips, common to both, and the eagerness for life and adventure in their faces. DESTINY ALIKE AS MATES MEET END WITH GUN

Stars Similar in Appearance,
Careers Follow Same Course,
Yet Each Finds Sorrow

By MARY DOUGHERTY

Does Fate yield a special pattern of face, feature and circumstance for those of us whom she casts for similar roles in the great drama of life?

It would seem so if, for instance, you happen to be one of hundreds of thousands who see a striking resemblance in face, form and character between Amelia Earhart and Col. Charles Lindbergh, the two solo fliers of the Atlantic.

And just as if you are of an analytical turn of mind, might you make an interesting comparison in the suddenly revealed likenesses shared by Jean Harlow and Libby Holman, the two outstanding figures in two tragedies now engaging public interest.

HAIR LENS CHARM

Jean, you say, is a platinum blonde—on one side her hair has her exact brilliance—Libby is dark, a brunette of pronounced type. Yet take pictures of the two of them in unstudied ease. Note the soft, fluffy aureole of hair that lends seductive charm to baby faces that might otherwise go unnoticed.

Totally unlike in color, yet look carefully at the picture and see when you turn away if the hair of each isn't your most lasting impression.

LIPS OF SAME MOULD

Perhaps the rounded lips of Jean with their dewy suggestiveness of new awakening finger in your mind's eye, most vividly. Well, turn to Libby's likeness, are the more cherubic Cupid's bow and sweeter they are of the same mould.

Both are delicately curved, both are pursed with the naturalness of a little girl innocent of guile, yet eagerly hungry for the sweets of life that are in some way, somehow, yet not entirely satisfying. . . . the eternal quest for adventure.

And who wouldn't their pictures seem alike . . . their lives are twin stories of ambition, success, triumph and tragedy if we read them over and study them carefully.

Both girls were born to lives of comfort and shelter. Neither

COL. ROBINS WAS HUB VISITOR IN JULY

Col. Raymond Robins was last in Boston early in July, according to H. B. Vandervell of the Christian Endeavor Society.

With the Allied Forces, headed by Dr. Paul Poling, he had just concluded a nationwide speaking campaign in favor of the retention of the Eighteenth Amendment.

"He was not here in connection with any meetings at that time," said Mr. Vandervell, "but had spoken in Trenton, Temple a year ago when the drive started, and a three-day meeting was held here. The campaign lasted 212 days, with 500 cities visited and Col. Robins delivered every address for which he was scheduled."

Col. Robins has made many appearances in Boston, and his visit is also well known to lecture audiences in this city. In 1933 Mrs. Robins addressed local women's organizations on the betterment of conditions for women in industry.

As early as 1908 Col. Robins lectured here to trades unions and suffragists, and has spoken at other times locally on world peace and prohibition.

Mechanics Recalled For Navy Yard Job

Report was made at a meeting of the Charleston Metal Trades Council last night that a large number of furnished mechanics are being called back to work on the Charleston, a naval transport at the Charleston Navy Yard.

Work for 100 riggers and mechanics will start on the transport when it arrives at the yard on Sept. 18 for a two months' overhauling. Naval draftsmen are still at work on plans for a new destroyer to be built here.

U. S. SEARCH ON FOR COL. ROBINS, MISSING PROHIBITION LEADER

gators from the prohibition forces had been assigned to the probe on the theory of foul play by bootleggers. Boston agents needed several orders.

3—At his summer home, Kennebunk Beach, Me., Salmon O. Levinson, of Chicago, internationally known lawyer and friend of both Robins and President Hoover, told of Robins' disappearance. He said Robins and he had "no doubt" something serious happened to him.

4—In New York, where Robins was last seen, police were secretly active, co-operating with government agents, but Dr. Frederick B. Smith, another social economist, stated his belief that Robins may be engaged in some "long wait" quest in the underworld.

RECALLS LINDBERGH CASE. The nature of the conference which Col. Robins was to have held on Tuesday with the President was still a mystery and Mrs. Robins said "they or may not" have had a bearing upon her husband's disappearance.

The sold private detective who gathered for a conference with her husband on Tuesday, the time of the Lindbergh baby kidnapping her husband told her.

"If I ever saw or pay, do not offer any reward or pay, my husband money," she added.

"And I intend to carry out his wishes expressed at that time to the letter."

Main authorities were not present at the meeting in Mrs. Robins' home at 100 E. 42nd st., New York, prohibition enforcement chief and internationally famous social worker were there.

County Atty. Percy C. Clarke, of Essex County, described Mrs. Robins as a woman of great courage and patience who is "bearing up bravely."

WIFE TELLS OF THREATS. Robins' wife, who was unaware until Wednesday that her husband had not gone on from New York to Washington, told of recent mysterious phone threats received at her home.

"I have on and on the following day been told that my husband was in Washington, but I have seen Robins with direct conversation unless he stopped his fight against the liquor traffic."

"I am hoping that he will return any time," she said, "but I fear he has been a victim of foul play."

I think the bootleggers from

Fears Foul Play

Fear that her husband, Col. Raymond Robins, friend of President Hoover and bitter foe of bootleggers, has been slain, was expressed by Mrs. Margaret Dreier Robins. Col. Robins disappeared in New York last Saturday on his way to Washington to see Hoover. He had been threatened by bootleggers in Florida, where the Robins home is located.

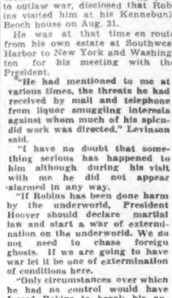

around our home in Brookville, Fla., have him. He had received many threats by telephone. I don't know what was said on the telephone except that they warned my husband to cease his activities against the illegal liquor traffic near our Florida home.

"I have an idea who my husband was asked to visit President Hoover at the White House. I do not know what they planned to discuss. Perhaps that may be key to his disappearance."

"My husband and the President were old friends and he had made several visits to Washington recently to talk with the President. What they talked about I do not know."

There is an reason for assuming he'll find him. I heard him speak 15 years ago but he was for the Nobel peace prize in 1933 and referred to by some as the actual author of the Kellogg pact to outlaw war, disclosed that Robins visited him at his Kennebunk Beach house on Aug. 31.

He was at that time on route from his own estate at Southwest Harbor to New York and Washington for his meeting with the President.

He had mentioned to me at various times, the threats he had received by mail and telephone from liquor smuggling interests against whom much of his splendid work was directed," Levinson said.

I have no doubt that something serious has happened to him although during his visit with me he did not appear alarmed in any way.

If Robins has been done harm by the underworld, President Hoover should declare martial law and start a war of extermination on the underworld. We do not need to chase foreign ghosts. If we are going to have war let it be one of extermination of conditions here.

Only circumstances over which he had no control would have forced Robins to break his appointment with the President.

an very much worried, of course."

HIS MAINE CRUSADE

Col. Robins last public crusade against the underworld, rum-running and its attendant evils was at Ellsworth, Me., on August 28.

"I saw him then, at his last formal appearance and public speech," County Atty. Clark said. "He was persuaded by Hayes to come to Ellsworth to speak on prohibition and law enforcement."

"There is a good deal of anti-prohibition and repeal sentiment about Bar Harbor, especially among the summer residents, and I imagine Col. Robins' appearance was to effect that."

"He made a typical prohibition law enforcement address, denouncing the underworld and attacking the underlings to those whose unwholesome people and practices, allowing them to increase vast fortunes for the engagement in illegal ventures. His speech was vigorous and forceful."

IS GOOD HEALTH

"There were no personalities in it and there is no reason for us to assume it created any animosity or ugliness which would have caused any persons in Maine to procure his disappearance or dispose of him."

"There is an reason for assuming he'll find him. I heard him speak 15 years ago but he was ment here for the Anti-Slavery League and National Board of Strategy meeting.

These concerns over the disappearance is shared by President Hoover.

Col. Robins, who is a member of the board of strategy, was expected to attend the meeting tonight at which a stand will be taken on the national campaign.

Dr. Fred B. Smith, a New York friend of the missing man, talked with the White House after Mrs. Robins' statement and reported the President's own orders.

Personally, however, Smith said he felt Robins' disappearance was "a tragedy." She had told of many threats on her husband's life for his active work in behalf of constitutional prohibition and against liquor violators.

LAUGHS AT THREATS

"Col. Robins is a lone wolf," Smith said. "When he wants to learn something, to dig up something, it occasionally happens that he will go off without telling anyone and he goes it alone until he finds what he wants."

"Threats against his life never faze him. He just laughs at them."

"But," he added, "of course it does seem unusual that he should break an engagement with the President."

Hospitals Searched for Robins in New York

New York, Sept. 9 (US)—The mysterious disappearance of Col. Raymond Robins, Chicago dry leader and economist, who failed to keep an appointment with President Hoover Tuesday, led to a far-flung search today, under the President's own orders.

New York detectives were combing various rum rooms in the metropolitan region who secure part of their liquor through Florida connections.

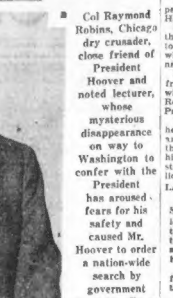

The federal agents and police today searched a checkered list of hotels, hospitals, and lodging houses throughout New York City in an effort to find some clue.

Labor Figures at Last Show Upturn

For the first time since 1928, the department of Labor figures in Washington show a definite upturn for business in the country. Asst. Secy. of Labor Robert Carl White will confer today at the national business conference in Wellesley.

At Washington, J. Hill, Secy. White shared the speaking honors today. Both spoke entire outlook of labor.

Col. Raymond Robins, Chicago dry crusader, close friend of President Hoover and noted lecturer, whose mysterious disappearance on way to Washington to confer with the President has aroused fears for his safety and caused Mr. Hoover to order a nationwide search by government agencies. Fear are expressed that Robins met foul play at the hands of bootleggers because of threats received by him regarding his activities against them. (International News Photos.)

According to Mrs. Robins he was to have met the President on Tuesday and on Saturday, the day he had dropped out of sight, she expected a telegram from him telling her to meet him in Washington.

No telegram came and Wednesday she telephoned to Washington to learn where he was. Then she discovered that he had not been there.

HANTOM WIFE OF JEAN HARLOW'S MATE SOUGHT FOR KEY TO SUICIDE TRAGEDY

It is the declaration that her presence was entirely unknown to Harlow brought to the fore additional possibilities. As first was a definite motive for the suicide of the kindly little "refugee" of Hollywood. Investigators said that it might have been possible that Bern, if he must tell Miss Harlow this episode of his past, dread it to such an extent that he finally ended his life as a "way out," his theory would explain the case in which he was not having "wronged" his beautiful actress wife. He second was a likelihood that a contest may develop for his estate. It was definitely known in two wills exist—the first made in 1920 naming the first woman in his life, Dorothy Millette, and the second made only a few weeks later leaving his property to Miss Harlow. LEGAL STATUS The second will would, of course, take precedence over the other unless Dorothy Millette could establish a legal status as the wife of the late producer. Such a status it was said by legal authorities might be established if it could be proved that she and Bern had lived together as man and wife in Canada, as reported, even if no actual marriage was of record. Common law marriages are recognized under certain circumstances, attorneys said. The mystery of Bern's suicide was further increased when Henry Bern, his brother, announced last night "certain complications" caused him to continue his silence.

He refused to issue a statement he said. "If that money was given to a statement," said Bern, "I cannot ask me what those complications are. Let's just say that when they have been straightened out I will tell all." JEAN BERNY KNOW Prior to Bern's statement, his attorney, Ralph Blum, had said: "We will be able to announce something definite concerning Paul Bern's previous marital status within a few days. We are beginning to investigate the reports that Bern had lived with a woman said to be his wife. Miss Harlow was quoted as saying Bern had told her he was paying a mortgage on an old house, but she knew nothing of the existence of the other woman. "If that money was given to a statement," said Bern, "I cannot ask me what those complications are. Let's just say that when they have been straightened out I will tell all."

Jean and Dorothy May Meet at Bier

Hollywood, Sept. 8.—The dramatic spectacle of the two women who loved Paul Bern, the glamorous Jean Harlow and the mysterious Dorothy Millette, may meet at the first time, over her dead body, when they go to the funeral of the man who was the friend of Bern and Miss Harlow as plans for the funeral were being made. The mysterious "phantom wife" of the film man was known to be in Southern California, and it was said to be impossible that she might appear at the services, they said.

double motive back of Bern's suicide, his dependency over a physical condition which threatened to raise an insurmountable barrier in his quest for marital happiness, and the belief that he had married Miss Harlow when he was not free to do so. Friends of Bern declared today that although he and Miss Harlow were married two months ago, they had never lived together as man and wife. "The strange role of the 'phantom wife' is made possible by the fact that although California law does not accord a common-law wife any rights when such a union takes place in the state, it does grant legal status to a common-law union recognized by law where it occurred."

Bern's Brother Refuses to Talk

time," said Harold "Sticker" Garrison, the young news chaffer, whose words and gestures gave the most vivid picture of all. Clifton Davis, the gardener, was not questioned about his statements that John Carmichael, the butler, had told him of domestic quarrels. He knew of none himself, he said, and Carmichael's answer to the same question was: "They seemed very happy."

COMPLAIN OF WORK MARINE BELLO, Jean Harlow's stepfather, was the first witness called by Counselor Frank A. Nance. He identified Bern's body. Bello said, he had noticed a "change of mood" but no indications of definite unhappiness. "He never complained, except sometimes that he had such a lot to do," said Bello. "He meant his work at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio."

woman, occupying the status of a common-law wife, had the legal rights of a lawfully wedded wife in California. "It is learned that a beautiful red-haired woman, still living and known to his friends as his wife, could legally out Miss Harlow from any claim upon him, placing her in the position of the innocent victim of a strange marital entanglement," it is reported. He refused to say anything about the unexpected presence in this city after the conference, but promised to do so later. The definite knowledge that the woman who was known as Mrs. Paul Bern, wife of the producer, for 10 years, was alive and not in a sanitarium, as first reported, opened investigators to draw definite theories from the case.

DOUBLE MOTIVE SEEN These sensational speculations were thrown into the foreground of the Bern mystery today, as relatives, attorneys and friends of the dead producer sought to find in answer to the question: "Why did Bern, successful, wealthy, happy in his home, suddenly decide to take his own life?" It was believed that there was a

FIND RICH BOYS SHOT TO DEATH

San Marcos, Mex., Sept. 9 (AP)—The deaths of two young sons of a millionaire ranchman, which a justice of the peace pronounced accidental, will be probed by Texas Rangers.

Arthur Morten, 15, was found dead yesterday inside a stone building which he and his brother, Harry, 14, used as sleeping quarters on the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hunter Morton of San Antonio. Harry, fatally wounded, lay about 25 yards from the house. Near Arthur's body was a pistol with four expended shells. He had been shot through the head. Harry had been shot three times and died in a hospital.

A. M. Ramsey, justice of the peace, returned a verdict of accidental death, saying he believed the boys were shot in a struggle for possession of the pistol.

The San Marcos News, through its manager, F. W. Park, asked Gov. Ross S. Sterling to send Rangers, expressing dissatisfaction with the verdict.

IMPORTED LABOR DRIVEN AWAY FROM CAPE ROAD JOB

The Boston Evening American today makes more disclosures regarding brazen lawlessness by certain big game contractors, who are reaping the benefits of $200,000 in illegal expenditures while barring veterans, citizen laborers and laborers imported from other states to work on the new Bourne-Vote.

"In its place, as a sign, the Senate adopted an amendment proposed by Parkman providing for investigation by the Department of Labor and Industries 'relative to the wages of laborers on public works'."

ENTITLED TO FAIR PAY
"Veterans and citizens expect and are entitled to a living wage. They should get at least 50 cents an hour or 55 a day. I have always felt that the American Legion and soldiers' relief agencies have been lame when placing applicants in not demanding that they get adequate pay."

"Instead of helping the unemployed certain contractors are aiding racketeers and contractors and report that we have never had greater co-operation from the State Department of Labor than at present."

"We filed a bill with the last Legislature seeking to fix the wage for laborers on road construction at 50 cents an hour. The bill was defeated by one vote. The House adopted the measure but the Senate killed it. The vote stood 17 to 17 and President Charles G. Bacon cast the decisive vote."

"In its place, as a sign, the Senate adopted an amendment proposed by Parkman providing for investigation by the Department of Labor and Industries 'relative to the wages of laborers on public works'."

allies. Our veterans and citizens are on the outside looking in, in the majority of cases."

"Citizens of the state are taxed for public improvements and they certainly should have the privilege of putting taxpayers to work on such jobs. When it is borne in mind that 80 per cent of the help employed on road construction are laborers, it will be appreciated what an important economic problem it is to make proper provision for veterans and citizens."

Another installment will be published in the Boston Evening American tomorrow.

Theft Ring Trapped: $4000 Book Is Found

New York, Sept. 9 (AP)—A band of literary thieves specializing in stealing rare volumes from public libraries was believed trapped today with the arrest of Harry Gold, book store owner.

He was indicted on charges of receiving stolen property after police recovered a first edition of Edgar Allan Poe's "Al Azraf" valued at $4000.

POLICE FREED IN DEATH CASE

Minola, N. Y., Sept. 9 (AP)—A verdict of "not guilty" was returned early today by the jury in the trial of the three Nassau County officers accused of the "third degree" death of Hyman Stark, accused as a New York gangster.

It was the second trial of the defendants. At the first one the jury disagreed after being out 19 hours. On that trial were Deputy Sheriff Chief Frank J. Tappen and Detectives Leslie W. Fernald and Harry W. Zander.

Stark, with three companions, was arrested charged with robbing the mother of Detective Joseph Hissnack.

Tappen was accused of "robbing" Stark by placing one foot on his neck, the other on his stomach, and swaying to and fro.

"You like that old pipe, don't you!"

"YES, I LIKE to smoke Granger Tobacco. During my time, I have tried all kinds of tobacco; but, frankly, I have never found any other pipe tobacco that is as good as Granger."

"I think I know something about smoking tobacco, and I should say that Granger is the one tobacco that is made just right for pipes."

"Then again, it is in the right kind of package."

K. A. JOHNSON

to Palomoth road were driven out of town by a posse of infuriated veterans and citizens.

Violence was narrowly averted by the timely intervention of Chairman Benjamin F. Bowen and his associates on the board of selection of Bourne.

The 15 "grubbers" brought into the state to clear the right-of-way of trees and brush, were sent back home, and Thomas J. McCus, the Watertown contractor, in charge of the $100,000 job, learned out a ticklish situation by putting 40 local citizens and veterans to work at once.

VETS WERE IDLE
Public sentiment was inflamed when it was discovered that the first men put to work were from other states. McCus explained that he had sublet the "brush-clearing" operations to a contractor who makes a specialty of removing trees and brush.

Anti-bodied local citizens, among them ex-service men, were standing around idle when the imported workers appeared on the job, in spite of promises made to the local authorities and the Department of Labor and State Employment Bureau that local applicants would be given first choice.

As soon as Commissioner Lyman of the public works department learned that 15 "grubbers" had been sent, he ordered their immediate discharge, but the citizens' committee had beaten him to it and taken matters in its own hands.

The Bourne incident indicates how deeply increased many communities are over the disregard shown for the preference act by contractors awarded highway contracts launched to relieve unemployment. Profiteers are State-wide. Veterans and citizens insist that discrimination must stop.

BACON KILLED BILL
Organized labor in supporting the campaign being waged by the State employment bureau, the Department of Labor and the public works department on behalf of veterans and citizens.

E. A. Johnson of the Building Trades Council said today: "The Building Trades Council is very much interested in road-building conditions. The type of laborers employed and the wages paid them have been live issues with our organization for years."

"We are wholeheartedly back of any reforms. We are happy to

SHIFTY DIPLOMATS
RECALL BAD DAYS
OF 1914

By GILBERT SELDES

I wouldn't care to be a statesman or the press agent of the League of Nations at this moment. Something tricky and shifty is going on—something which has all the appearance of the jockeying for position which occurred in the last few days before the war broke out and which was one of the reasons the war did break out. If you wish you may take a cynical pleasure in the circumstance that the subject of all this diplomatic activity is Disarmament; it is the only pleasure available at the moment. The French and the Germans are both indicating a contempt for the part which could only be equalled if the Presidents of both countries were to go in broad daylight to the graves of their Unknown Soldiers—and scribble filthy words upon the cenotaphs.

GILBERT SELDES

Mr. Lloyd George, furious with France, wrote a few months ago that "the immense land armaments of France are a glaring and arrogant breach of the undertakings of the Treaty of Versailles . . . (of) the pledge, implicit in the treaty that German disarmament should be followed and paralleled by her own . . . French ministers are still arguing . . . whether they should carry out one-tenth of their treaty obligations in respect of disarmament." That Germany has any right, under the treaty, to demand that France disarm is news to most people, but not to the Germans. They know they have the right, and instead of using it, they are asking the parallel right of arming in equality with other nations. They say they are willing to disarm; but if others are not, they want to arm. These, at least, are the positions of the two governments; what the millions of Germans and Frenchmen actually want is not so easy to say.

More and Worse Wars

Germany, bankrupt, disorganized, a prey to internal chaos, delivers an ultimatum to France; France is preparing to reject it on the grounds that Europe is in process of disarming and that Germany's claim, if now admitted, would lead to greater, instead of less, armament. One might have lived in peace with a peaceful democratic Germany; now Germany is militaristic, half-governed by energetic Hitlerites, so jumpy that at any moment it may fly to arms.

If I were a gambling man I would buy stock in all our steel and munition industries—for the long pull. If these conversations go on another few weeks the pull will not be so long. I can hear war songs in my ears and smell the fragrance of propaganda.

I do not know whether Mayor McKee or the Communists whom he is gladly meeting on Saturday will learn more about the subject of their discussion—which is unemployment relief—but I am pretty sure that the tactical advantages are all on the side of the Mayor. The Communists came with demands; the Mayor met them with pleasure; a police permit for a rally was promptly issued, and the Mayor, who has already asked the co-operation of all citizens in solving municipal problems, is apparently anxious to talk even with the citizens who have a low opinion of citizenship under our form of government. The soft answer which is supposed to turn away wrath has been given. In the minds of Republicans and of Democrats the present situation has, or should have, two aspects: call them misery and the system. If misery continues too long, the system must collapse; but if the system is wrecked in an effort to prevent misery, even greater misery may occur. The whole process of Mr. Hoover's mind has shown this wavering between two difficulties; no doubt he wished to do something for the unemployed, but he could do nothing without breaking down the sacred wall which surrounds the Republican conception of government.

The Communists, having no expectation of taking over power within the next three months, are in an easier position. If they like, they can hammer the facts of human misery into our brains without end, because they have no system to defend. The system they desire isn't in existence.

BETTY GOW IS IN SECLUSION

Glasgow, Scotland, Sept. 9 (INS)—Betty Gow, niece of John Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., at the time of her kidnapping and murder dropped from sight today.

The young Scot who has been reported planning to return to the United States to raise her mother, Mrs. Anne Lindbergh, a new baby was left Glasgow, it was learned, accompanied by her mother.

She started for some unknown reason, leaving her friends and relatives, she revealed her plans to go to meet her father, who was wanted by the law, for her kidnapping was reported of her daughter's whereabouts.

DOZENS DIE IN BOAT BLAST

BOAT VANISHES

Capt. Joseph Rogers of the m. n. ship, ferry Greenwich Village, gave a graphic account of the explosion.

"I heard a blast and saw the boat blown to smithereens," he said. "When the smoke and steam had cleared away he could see the passengers struggling in the water over a large area. Our ferryboat was in its slip at E. 11th st., two blocks from the pier where the observation had been made."

"We lowered the lifeboats and cruised about in the wreckage. We picked up four bodies and two injured persons. Other people were putting out in small boats and then were picked up bodies and injured men."

It was at this time the ferry dock that in 1904 he arrested the captain of the steamship "General Sherman," who was in Hell Gate with a load of 1021 live CAPTAIN IS VICTIM.

All witnesses of the explosion of the observation were taken in nearby police stations for questioning. Alexander Forsythe of West Brighton, Staten Island, captain and owner of the ferryboat who reported the explosion, could not explain the disaster.

"The boilers exploded," he repeated over and over. "The boilers exploded." And that was the only explanation he had to offer.

Max Menhett, a truckman said he saw the boat shoot high into the air.

"It looked like a balloon rocket," he said, "and when it hit the water it exploded and sent up a column of spray and steam."

Four hours after the explosion Commissioner Mulvihill said a report from hospitals and the morgue listed 21 bodies.

RYAN'S OTHER DISASTERS

The contracting company, which employed the men reported 37 known dead, however, police agreed that the final count would probably exceed that figure.

Investigators seeking to fix the time of the explosion looked at the watches of two of the victims. One watch had stopped at 8:04 and the other at 8:10.

It was the worst river tragedy here since 1926 when 38 men were drowned when a work launch was crushed in the schooner Hudson. The launch was the Lumber King and it was carrying a load of newly employed men in their first day's work in New Jersey.

It was just before Christmas and the men set forth singing with joy at their fortune in finding work. It is believed the little boat hit him and they drowned or were ground to death.

Walter M. H. of the penitentiary and that no city employees were on the observation, all the men being employees of the contracting firm, building the penitentiary. Most of them were from Wisconsin.

THIS WAR PAY DAY

Mayor Joseph P. McKee told of the explosion and he would report upon Commissioner Mulvihill's report.

In the explosion one body was tossed 50 feet and landed on a roof near the waterfront. Another body was hurled 50 feet to the roof of the Edison plant.

Peter Collins, a life guard saw the explosion. He called workers from a nearby power house and returned to give aid.

This was the workers' regular weekly pay day and many had returned for duty early.

E. G. Wallerstein of Tonawara, a clerk employed by the Carlin Co. was sitting in the bow of the boat at the time of the blast. He was hurled into the air and fell into the water. He was hurled into the dock with a force. A hurried examination disclosed that he was not injured.

One diver was sent for from the department of docks and two were dispatched from the Brooklyn Navy Yard.

SANK YEAR AGO

More than three hours after the explosion police said that investigation indicated that there were 10 men on the observation when the boilers exploded. The number of dead was still listed at 37 at that time.

The observation was at one time in sight serving service for touring tourists around Manhattan Island. It sank at its pier at Kearney's N. Y. arm a year ago but was raised and recommissioned.

It last inspection by the United States steamboat inspection service of the Department of Commerce was last April and marked "O. K." for one year. The inspection included life preservers, boiler and hull.

The Alexander, a station reported to Police Headquarters that Alexander Forsythe, captain and owner of the observation, who was under detention in Lincoln Hospital, had died of his injuries.

Saw Bodies Hurled 50 Feet in Terrible Blast

New York, Sept. 9 (INS)—Second Officer F. L. Calla of the S. S. Freeman of the Poughkeepsie line, an eyewitness in the tragic explosion of the observation and his subsequent efforts to save the men struggling in the water.

"I was standing on the deck," he said, "looking out toward the observation when suddenly I heard the terrific explosion. The boat seemed to rise in the air, disintegrate into a thousand pieces and hurt men in every direction."

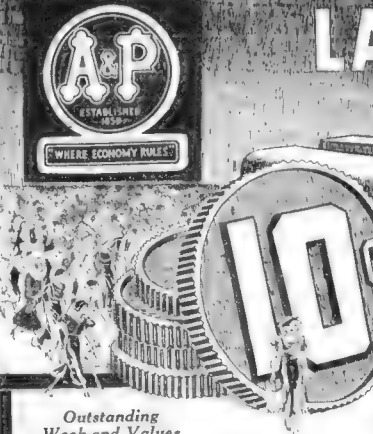

"I saw one body tossed through a plate glass window and another thrown 50 feet in the air to land against an iron pole in front of the gymnasium, near the water front. The body struck the pole, then fell limply to the ground. It all seemed unreal, like a tragic scene from a moving picture. For a moment I was stunned—then I shouted to the Swimmers to hurry to the boat."

"We hurried it into the water and paddled around. We pulled four men out of the water—all unconscious and all bleeding horribly. We brought them to shore and turned them over to the ambulance doctors who had just arrived."

Survivor Saw River Full of Bleeding Men

New York, Sept. 9 (INS) E. J. Wallerstein of Tonawara was one of the first survivors of the tragic explosion on the observation this morning. He was sufficiently recovered to recount his experiences.

"I was sitting in the back of the boat as we left the dock," he said, "suddenly I heard the terrific explosion and was tossed high in the air and into the river. I came up immediately and bits of wood and debris were falling all around me. The water seemed full of men, all faced, many bleeding. Someone threw a life belt and I was hurled to shore."

PORTER SARGENT'S BOOK SHOWS WHY OUR PUBLIC SCHOOLS LOSE OUT
By ROBERT E. ROGERS

WHETHER IT WAS Emerson or Elbert Hubbard who wrote that remark about the maker making a beaten path to the door of the inventor of the better mouse-trap doesn't really matter much. The fact remains that it is still true, in spite of all the confusion of competition and ballyhoo advertising in these days of ours. Newspapers and magazines are full of "human interest" stories of people who have hit upon some little specialty and out of it made, if not a fortune, at least a competence. In spite of all the talk about the "forgotten man," it is generally true in this world that if you are really interested in something and have any capacity at all, you will find your job. Or, rather, your job will reach out and grab you by the scruff of the neck and the slack of your pants and hang on to you for dear life.

One of the men who has found a little field for his life work and made it all his own is a Bostonian, Porter Sargent. He is, I suppose, the greatest living expert on American private schools and private school-teachers, and summer camps. He has even published surveys of our public school systems. But his first love and his most important field of usefulness is in the private school and summer camp field.

Porter Sargent a Liberal Fighter

A glance at the 16th edition of his book "Private Schools," published this year, gives anybody interested in American education a good deal to think about. Here in more than 1000 pages he gives the necessary information about more than 4000 private schools, mostly situated in America. Not only that, but at least a tenth of the volume is given up to discussion and argument about the theory of education, recent tendencies in private and public schooling, books and reading, important books and that sort of thing.

Porter Sargent is no mere statistician. He is a philosophic liberal of a fighting strain. He was one of the founders of the Harvard Liberal Club back nearly 20 years ago, when the organization—I do not know whether it ever exists now or not—was actively engaged in fighting President Lowell's aristocratic policies. So successful were they that the administration tried to force the organization to stop using the name Harvard, although its members were all Harvard alumni, on the ground that it did not represent Harvard sentiment. Some of its meetings were pretty dull. I remember one, at which James Mackay, the economist—brother of Percy—talked interminably on a new, scientific version of Bentham's Utilitarianism, which was just plain deadly. I imagine that the Decade of Infatuation took the heart out of the group. But Porter Sargent was one of the leading spirits and his pages in his book are full of the old irreconcilable spirit of saying to the accepted shibboleths of the day. The public school, of course, is one of our most cherished shibboleths. We like to think—and, indeed, we commonly speak as if it were true—that all American children go to the public schools. But with nearly 4000 private schools important enough to be included in Mr. Sargent's book this obviously is not true.

Why Private Schools Are Preferred

At that I imagine that the book does not deal with the large number of Catholic parochial schools, which are, strictly speaking, private schools. It does include, of course, the Catholic preparatory schools and "finishing schools." The total enrollment in all these non-public schools is enormous and, before the depression, was growing very rapidly.

Some years ago in the Atlantic Monthly the well-beloved naturalist and educator, Dallas Lore Sharp, felt moved to write an impassioned defense of the traditional American public school. Obviously he would not have felt thus moved a decade or two previously. It was because most of his friends, members of his profession and his social class, were leaving the public for the private schools that he felt some statement of his faith was necessary. His opinion was eloquent and persuasive, but it did not stop the steady drift toward the private schools. That drift is still marked, and, although halted temporarily by the depression, cannot help growing stronger than ever.

What are the reasons for this drift? Many. Over-crowded city classrooms, the old-fashioned, out-of-date curriculum. Too many children for one over-worked teacher. Class-rooms so full of children of recent immigrant stock that a child of old American family who already knows his own language is forced to neglect. Class-rooms so crowded with children of inferior intelligence that the bright child is lost in the mass. So many children whose manners, speech and behavior are so elementary that careful American parents simply cannot bear to see their child's breeding brought down by association and imitation to that lower level. These are the reasons most common in our great cities and in our industrial cities.

Public Schools Not Up to Best

Another reason is, of course, that the public schools cannot in the nature of things afford the loose organization, the expensive equipment and the newer, experimental methods of teaching. They cannot, many of them, offer the so-called "frills" by which so much fuss is being made today, things like drama, pageantry, dancing, art work, modelling, and the like. Some communities do offer these things, but not all. But the average intelligent parent's chief objection is standard. Some children he feels out of the frying pan into the fire by enrolling his child in one of these "progressive schools," where everything is sacrificed to the development of individuality, often with pretty terrible results.

Again many high schools cannot properly fit a student for college. The post-graduate year at a private school is becoming tremendously common in our system, simply because the local high school is not capable of doing the work the tax-payers expect it to do. For boys at least, a wise father will demand teaching by masters instead of women during the difficult high school age. Furthermore, although it is absurd to say that the good private school teacher is a bit better in any way than the good public school teacher, yet it is certain that one type of teacher altogether too common in the public schools cannot possibly get a position in a good private school. The children are at least sure of being taught by ladies and gentlemen.

There is nothing more significant of the breakdown of our traditional system of democracy than this growth of the private school. Every intelligent parent who can possibly afford it will sacrifice, nowadays, to buy private school education for his children. This goes for the Catholic and Jew as well as for the Protestant Yankee. It is something that cuts across the lines of race and creed. For the ambitious parent who wants the better things for his children the public schools are no longer good enough. We may as well put in his pipe and smoke it!

"MARY FAITH"

How a Hard-Working Girl
Finds Her Way

By BEATRICE BURTON

Mary Not to Be Jealous of Kim

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE?
Mary Faith, young and lovely fiancée of Kimball, handsome young man just out of law school, began her position as secretary to the wealthy Mrs. Norton in the city of Boston. Mary Faith, who had been a clerk in a small office, was now in a position to make a name for herself. Mary Faith, who had been a clerk in a small office, was now in a position to make a name for herself. Mary Faith, who had been a clerk in a small office, was now in a position to make a name for herself.

"And tonight you drove her home," said Mary Faith, nodding.

GRAVES vs. CINCINNATI

LEADERS RALLY

DEALINGS

New York, Sept. 9.—Leaders rallied in afternoon trading on the New York Stock Exchange today and managed to show gains of one to two or more points, being off one to three points in an earlier selling drive.

U. S. Steel was cheered around as better than a point net advance, though uncertainty surrounded the railroads' report for August to be issued tomorrow.

RAILROAD RALLY
Railroads led a morning rally which peaked out, copper was subject to considerable profit-taking.

In mid-afternoon trading gains of 2 or more points came for Union Pacific, Chesapeake & Delaware Canal, American Can and Eastman Kodak. At the same time there were points for better gains for Alcoa Chemical, Auburn, Continental, U. S. Steel, and others.

Lambert sold off around a couple of points, Kennecott at the same time sold down a point or more.

Speculative lines in the bond market moved uncertainly, but high grade bonds were generally steady.

Brokers say there has been a fairly large total of stop-loss orders in the market for some days, many of them representing a profit for their clients.

Some observers feel the reaction noted in go to the extent of Steel selling at 48, where a real test of the market's immediate future would develop.

The selling is accepted with satisfaction in many firms which have been taking reaction for the whole week, largely because many of them have customers who are quite willing to come back to market when prices work lower.

U. S. STEEL TONNAGE
Despite numerous reports of a sharp increase in unfilled orders of the U. S. Steel Corp. during August, the monthly report, which will be released at noon tomorrow, is expected to show little improvement in output in the month.

Change in other directions in the opinion of usually well-informed steel observers today.

It is pointed out that it would have required a significant increase in new business to bring about a large increase in the bookings despite the fact that the output of the corporation was at a low level during the month.

Some gain in new business occurred, although there was no increase toward the end of the month.

It is believed certain, however, that the tonnage report for August will be less disappointing than the past three years. In that month there were 230,350 tons, while in 1933 the drop was 41,551 tons, and in 1929 it amounted to 122,950 tons.

Over the three preceding years, the plants of the corporation have been running at a comparatively high rate to meet the demand of the customers on specifications while new business was falling off sharply.

During last month the corporation kept output steady and shipments near incoming business as usual, with connection with specifications for deliveries.

FEDERAL RESERVE
By MERRILL S. RUCKENSTEIN
New York, Sept. 9.—If improved sentiment is retained through the autumn, bank credit might be expected to perform distinctly more efficiently.

From the recent bank credit had not only decreased, but was contracting in physical volume, but what was equally important, on business was the fact that the rate of turnover of bank deposits had fallen to a distinctly lower pace.

Even without a physical expansion of bank credit, which, by the way, is reasonable to anticipate, there could be substantial stimulus to business through an acceleration of the rate of bank deposits.

A leading Wall St. economist, in discussing this subject, said that the best effect of credit expansion could be obtained without increasing the volume of credit in two ways.

"1. A part of the bank credit now frozen in the security market could be thawed and employed in direct loans to commerce and industry.

"2. As confidence returns, the velocity of bank deposits can and will increase, and the velocity of bank deposits is an index as to justify the term abnormal.

"The best technique for increasing credit rapidly and to a member bank investment in U. S. securities."

Loading Declines Are Again Smaller
In line with usual seasonal tendencies, carloadings which have reported for loading for the week ended September 3 show not only substantial increases over the preceding seven days, but a percentage decline from 1931, than the seven days ended August 27. Reports to date indicate that all sections, indicating another seasonal increase for that month, the inclusive report to be published Saturday.

Bond Offerings Larger
New bond offerings this week totaled $10,632,000, against $10,000,000 last week and $7,535,000 a year ago.

Yesterday's sales 5,400,000

COOK-COOKS

By TED COOK

PARENTS, ARISE! WE WILL HELP YOU!

At last modern ingenuity has come to the aid of responsibility-craved parents! The Jim Dandy Double Strength Humane Restraint Woven Wire Protection Bed will help you keep track of your adolescent sons and daughters after dark. The side door is held fast by four strong locks, and makes it practically impossible for the occupant to slip away to picture show, dance hall or corner drug store. Save parents thousands of dollars in gasoline and tires. What is more, it can be used, in a pinch, to keep a husband home of an evening.

And the narrower the mind, the broader the statement.

AMERICAN TRAGEDY

(News Item)

"Mrs. Kimberly declared she was sitting in the park when Kimberly sat down beside her and talked of marriage and of his property, and finally she concluded she might as well marry, as she was alone and elderly. After the ceremony, she declared, she learned he had deduced his property to a daughter."

Parents who try to dominate find out they've started much too late.

Today's News Picture

This is J. Wilbert Donkes, both of whose shoulders are blistered from being congratulated by men high in the councils of administrative affairs in this country. Wilbert modestly suggested that, hereafter, police use laughing gas instead of tear bombs to break up unruly mobs of bewildered and unemphatically defenseless people.

Little Willie, whistling loudly, down pa's back slipped itching powder. Ma said, "He was one bad catch—Now your pa can just go scratch."
